Creation and Management

George S. Yacoubian, Jr. and his wife Erica began their adoption process in 2005. Throughout that spring and summer, they went through home study and various levels of domestic governmental approval required for an international adoption. While in Armenia that summer, they saw Liliana for the first time. George and Erica submitted their dossier to the Armenian government that fall, received preliminary approval in December 2005, and obtained final approval in March 2006. Liliana arrived in the United States on April 23, 2006.

The Society for Orphaned Armenian Relief (SOAR) was established in the fall of 2005 as a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization that today provides humanitarian relief to orphaned Armenian children and orphaned Armenian adults with disabilities in Armenia, Artsakh, Istanbul, Javakh, Lebanon, and Syria. In early 2006, an experienced Board of Directors was assembled, a network of Partners in Armenia was recruited to assist with distributions, and the website was launched. In 2009, a National Board of Trustees was created to review annually SOAR's fiscal operations and distributions.

Represented by more than 100 Chapters and 5 Junior groups worldwide, SOAR supports 38 institutions throughout the world. Some volunteers are parents of adopted Armenian children; others simply recognize the significance of SOAR's work and want to help perpetuate its mission. The common bond among them all is the recognition that orphaned children and adults with disabilities represent the most vulnerable population of Armenian society.

Quality Control

SOAR has a strict quality control protocol to assure that all donations reach the intended recipients. This protocol has five essential elements.

1. SOAR rarely makes cash distributions directly to the orphanages. Rather, goods and services that can be procured in Armenia are purchased by in-country staff and distributed directly to the institutions.
2. SOAR implements chain-of-custody procedures for any distributed goods or services, providing assurance that these items have been received by the orphanages in the exact quantity intended. These procedures have three sub-steps:
 - a. In-country staff sign for the shipments and/or attest to the type and quantity of goods or services procured in Armenia. This invoice includes an exact description of the type and quantity of goods and services.
 - b. The recipient institution's director signs this same invoice, indicating that the exact type and quantity of goods and services received is the quantity indicated.
 - c. Both invoices are mailed to SOAR's Executive Board Chairman.
3. SOAR Partners, in-country Chapter members, and other volunteers make random inspections of the institutions. Discrepancies are to be reported immediately to SOAR's Executive Board Chairman.
4. When possible, goods donated or services provided by SOAR are engraved and/or stamped with a corporate seal. Capital projects are acknowledged with a dedication plaque.
5. A zero-tolerance policy for fraud, theft, and/or deception is imposed. Any malfeasance would result in the termination of assistance.

In 1865, she mobilized financial support for the victims of epidemic cholera and, in 1866, opened an orphanage for 17 girls who lost their families in this epidemic disaster. Both the Order of Kalfayan and the orphanage exist today due to support of the Patriarchate and charitable Armenians around the world.

In 1936, "The Providence Orphanage" (Nakhaknamootian Doon) was founded in the Syrian region of Azizie and was a haven for 300 orphaned children. Before March 2011, the orphanage housed up to 35 girls who lived in an environment of peace and who attended regular school. Because of the war and the unrest in Aleppo, many of the Armenian orphans could no longer stay at The Providence Orphanage. Some live in Meydan, a very poor Armenian section in Aleppo, and attend Zvartnotz School, while other orphans live in Azizie and attend Zanabek, the other Armenian school run by the Armenian Sisters of the Immaculate Conception.

Reunification

Child reunification refers to the process of returning children in temporary out-of-home care to their families of origin. Reunification is not a one-time event, but a process involving the healthy integration of the child into their original family with a goal of permanency. Often when families require temporary out-of-home care of their children, families are left powerless in their choices of what is best for their child. Families that are given the chance to stay in contact with their children can learn about child rearing with the proper encouragement and support.

Every child deserves to be raised by biological family, when possible and when in the child's best interest. With that goal in mind, SOAR created the Child Reunification and Family Training (CRAFT) Program in February 2015. The Program has four components:

1. Construction of "family suites" at full residential facilities so families can visit their children. To date, family suites have been renovated at Kharberd and Mari Izmirlyan Orphanages. Construction of a third suite (photos below) is close to completion at Dzorak Care Center.

2. Day Centers. The Gyumri Social Childcare Center (GSSC) and Community Development and Social Support Center (CDSSC) Sponsorship Programs. Part of our larger Sponsorship Program, the funds are used for both child- and family-specific needs that are intended to reduce the prevalence of institutionalization and reinstitutionalization for those children at high risk. In the summer of 2016, SOAR agreed to assist CDSSC with rent so a larger facility could be obtained to facilitate the work with the increasing number of children attending the Center.

3. Reunification Days. Reunification Days bring together birth families and their children to spend time together in a neutral, casual venue. Families are educated about their child's needs, progress, challenges, and what resources are available to support the child's return to the family.
4. SCOH (Service to Children in their Own Homes) Sponsorship Program. Funds for children at serious risk for re-institutionalization are used to provide home-based services to children who have previously been institutionalized with the goal of maintaining reunification and preventing reinstitutionalization.

The Carol Fananjian Foundation Grant

In December 2015, SOAR received a $6,000 grant from The Carol Fananjian Foundation to host a Reunification Day for the girls of Mer Hooy (MH) and Mer Doon (MD).¹ The Reunification Day was held on August 6, 2016, at the Arthurs Resort in Aghveran, Armenia, with 14 girls at Mer Hooy between the ages of 8 and 17 and 15 girls from MD between the ages of 16 and 22.

The Day was attended by six parents (21%) of the 29 children. The Day was led by Gayana Saribekyan and Narine Abrahamyan, respectively the MH social worker and psychologist; SOAR-Moscow volunteers Sona Stepanyan and Anna Petrosyan; and SOAR staff Hripsime Muradyan (Executive Director) and Alina Karapetyan.

The parents arrived to the hotel at approximately 9:45AM. Breakfast was served from 10:00-10:45AM, after which the Day's leaders discussed the purpose of the Day – to bring families together and inform the parents about the needs of the children and the progress each had made since arriving to their respective facilities.

From 11:00AM-12:00PM, the social workers split into teams and assigned the responsibilities to various groups, and from 12:00-1:00PM, the groups provided their materials to the staff for the purposes of the presentation. The primary goal of the morning/early afternoon session was for staff to observe how the parents interacted with their children. For three of the parents, this Reunification Day was the first opportunity to interact with their children in a formal educational setting since institutionalization.

The afternoon sessions mirrored those from 2015. Lunch was served from 1:00-1:40PM. Following lunch, volunteers provided information to the parents about successful parenting, behavioral models, and patience in child-rearing. From 2:00-4:30PM, there was role playing with the families and family discussions. From 4:30-6:00PM, the families discussed the short- and long-term strategies the children and parents wanted to pursue toward reunification. The primary goal of the afternoon sessions was to highlight the strengths of the children and to demonstrate that parental reintegration into the children's lives was critical, for both the child's emotional development and to facilitate the goal of reunification. The day concluded at 5:30PM with dinner.

Lessons Learned

The Reunification Day was deemed successful for those parents who did attend. For both these parents and their children, the Reunification Day was not only a chance to spend time with each other, but an opportunity to learn about the best ways to develop and re-establish familial relationships. The parents informed the volunteers that they learned about their own strengths and weaknesses and identified what they needed to change among themselves and their environment before reunification could be possible. Most importantly, there was no finger-pointing or blaming. Rather, the parents acknowledged their areas of opportunity and expressed a sincere desire to change.

Several issues arose which require attention for 2017. First, while the MD and MH girls enjoyed each other socially (at least one girl had spent time at both facilities), the age difference (primarily younger girls at MH with primarily older girls at MD) made the reunification day challenging as only one parent from MD attended. Future reunification efforts should consider separate days for each of the MD and MH girls. Second, parental attendance remains poor, despite a small financial incentive ($20USD) for attendance. Staff could point to know other reason for non-attendance than ambivalence. While this is not surprising given the social situation the girls are in, the failure to lure the parents to the Reunification Day represents a major hurdle for the ultimate long-term goal of successful reunification. Third, because SOAR expanded the Day to two facilities in 2016, we were not able to increase the reunification day (for cost reasons) to an overnight or weekend experience. By expanding the current model, there can be more intimate interaction between the parents and children, mediated by a social worker. Fourth, a more childcentered approach may be needed to address in a formal and clinical setting issues related to psychoeducation, affective expression, coping, behavioral therapy, and skills-building. Particularly for the older children, developing professional and occupational skills is critical to income generation, often a hurdle to reunification in Armenia. Fifth, future efforts should consider multisystemic therapy (MST) for children under the age of 18 who display serious antisocial behaviors. At least two of the MH girls may benefit from MST. Finally, Motivational Interviewing (MI) would be incredibly valuable for both the children and parents. MI is an approach used to work with those who might not present as prepared to change their behavior. The children and families in Armenia often lack motivation to change their emotional, social, and occupational deficiencies.

Conclusion

The Society for Orphaned Armenian Relief (SOAR) was established in the fall of 2005 to provide humanitarian relief to orphaned Armenian children. SOAR's long-term goal is to provide orphaned Armenian children throughout the world with the resources fundamental to their physical, emotional, and intellectual development. Over time, we aim to provide underprivileged youth with the tools necessary to become accomplished, educated, and self-supporting Armenian adults.

A $6,000 grant from The Carol Fananjian Foundation was used to support a Reunification Day with the girls from Mer Hoos and Mer Doon Orphanages. The Day emphasized communication and parenting skills for the younger girls and career aspirations for the older girls. While the Day was deemed a success for those families who attended, major challenges remain.

Consensus among SOAR staff is that the next Reunification efforts should focus on children and families assisted through our SCOH Program. Unlike the girls presently institutionalized at MH and MD, the SCOH children, previously institutionalized, were recently reunified and need attention to prevent reinstitutionalization. Future funds will be used to facilitate educational and occupational training for the children and addressing parental issues that had previously created a hostile and dysfunctional household.

SOAR is extremely grateful to the Foundation for its support of our work, and we hope that additional funding will be available to facilitate our SCOH efforts in 2017. The desire to improve the lives of orphaned Armenian children is the bonding element among our supporters, and our CRAFT Program offers the goal of reunifying children with their biological families and stabilizing those familial situations post-reunification.
